Continental Materials Signs Letter of Intent with LUMA Resources – Bringing Roof Integrated Solar to Steep Slope Roofs Nationally

Abington, PA (6/11) – Continental Materials, Inc. (CMI) announces that has reached a tentative agreement to work with LUMA Resources, LLC to provide Building Integrated Photo Voltaic (BIPV) solar shingle systems for steep slope residential and commercial projects throughout the United States. LUMA Solar, the inventor, now produces the cleanest, easiest and most complete solar rooftop system available for use in conjunction with asphaltic shingles, tile or any other traditional roofing types that can help provide home/building owners with energy independence and energy savings.

LUMA’s innovative design allows a simple installation of high-output PV solar shingles on traditional sloped roofing projects. The system is aesthetically pleasing, and can be integrated with any type of roofing shingle. The products carry an Underwriters Laboratories (UL) rating for both the solar component as well as being a roof covering which means it’s been tested for safety. The system is totally building integrated and qualifies for Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED) points.

CMI is excited about the opportunity to provide this solar power solution where the ‘solar is the roof’ and to work even more closely with distributors and contractors across the US through its extensive sales team. CMI continues to be committed to working with its distributor partners and bringing them value and this new opportunity to be part of an important growth segment of the roofing industry.
